CAPTIVE Saturday Night DOC Movie

This inspirational drama is based on the true story of Ashley Smith (Kate Mara), a once drug addicted single mother who was taken hostage in her apartment by a troubled man named Brian Nichols (David Oyelowo). On the run after murdering a judge and two other people at the courthouse, convicted felon Nichols was a frenetic and threatening presence in the apartment, causing Smith to believe she would soon be killed.

OUIJA Sunday Night Movie

A group of friends inadvertently stir a dark force while attempting to contact their late friend through a Ouija board. Author: Jason Buchanan

Visiting for Family Day Event Weekend

Saturday, July 30th, 2016

For those inmates who are participating in the Family Day:

Visiting Hours will take place from 11:15 am - 3:30 pm.

(No early visiting due to the size of the event)

Visitors and Adults in custody will be required to follow the visiting dress code.

There will NOT be any regular visiting outside the Family Day Event on Saturday.

For those inmates not participating in the event, visits will only be on Sunday.

Visiting will be modified

In anticipation of a large amount of visitors and the limited space in our visiting room, visiting will be limited to 50 visitors at a time for a one-hour visit. There will be two one hour visiting sessions in the afternoon. Visitors will only be allowed to visit during one of the visiting sessions for the day.

Help Break the Cycle

New Directions Northwest runs several Drug and Alcohol Programs, including the Elkhorn Adolescent Drug and Alcohol Center (EADAC). EADAC recently started a new youth program to encourage teamwork and leadership through positive role-modeling. The new program is through the Boy Scouts of America called Venturing, that teaches teamwork and leadership skills through outdoor activities like camping. They have asked for some financial support as it is difficult for them to raise funds. Their funds are already strained by the cost of training materials, uniforms and other activities.

To donate please make your CD-28 out to: Venturing Acct #2460

G.P. Outreach

New Directions Northwest Submission

Here's what a G.P. Committee member has to say

I'm a convict. I'm an addict, junkie, liar, thief and robber. I would steal from you, or anyone, even my own family. I take from them because they always forgive me. I know this hurts them, but I don't care. I don't care about anyone or anything. This was my justification, my Core Belief. I lived by this motto because I thought it gave me strength.

I'm currently serving the 9th year of a 13.5-year prison sentence. Somewhere along the line I began to question that core belief. How had it served me? I victimized people constantly. I forced my friends and family to live every moment of my addiction, and later my prison sentence, with me. I left a pregnant girlfriend to struggle and now have a daughter who has never had her father to tuck her into bed at night. That is what "I don't care" has done for me.

After a few years incarcerated I began to change. I joined clubs, made a plan to enter college, eventually entered working towards a degree and joined a Union Apprenticeship program. I enjoyed regular visits from my daughter. Her name is Jordyn and she's beautiful. Once I finally had the chance to enter the A.I.P program, I did so for the 3-year time cut because I had already changed right? Wrong. The changes I made were on the surface. My thinking, emotions and beliefs were still unchanged. I still victimized and deceived. The person I claimed to be and the actions I took were not the same. I'd been lying to myself, longing to change, but lacked the tools for the job.

After just 60 days in the program I can say I'm not a convict. I'm a father. I'm not a junkie, liar or thief, but a role model, friend and ally. I'm choosing each day to be these things and finally know what it means to embrace change. I'm going home to my daughter. I'm leaving, yes, but what really matters is that I'm a better man. Knowing what I know now, given the same opportunity, without the time cut, I'd enter the program in a heartbeat.

Be on the look out for the next round of G.P. Outreach Sign Up Sheets on your unit. If you miss the Sign Up Sheet please send a communication to Mr. Washington to be added to the list.
